

Emotions of Separation

Separation means more than physically separating a family. It also means separating a family financially. Both can bring great emotional stress. Parents will come through the process in a better financial state if they can keep their emotions from influencing their financial decisions.

What are some of the emotions you experienced during the separation process?

How do these emotions play an important role in parents' ability to negotiate a financial separation, and why?
